Newmont Position on North America Joint Ventures Operations Following Barrick IPO Announcement

DENVER – Feb. 9, 2026 – Newmont Corporation (NYSE: NEM, ASX: NEM, PNGX: NEM) (“Newmont”) today stated its position in response to investor questions and media reports regarding Barrick Mining Corporation’s (TSX: ABX, NYSE: B) preparations for an initial public offering (IPO) of its North American gold assets and operational performance. These assets include interests in Nevada Gold Mines (NGM), Pueblo Viejo, and Fourmile.

Any transaction implicating Newmont’s joint ventures must respect the protections that are contained in those agreements, including, but not limited to, the transfer restriction requirements. Newmont’s primary concern is the operation and management of NGM, which has suffered a degradation in performance and subsequent asset value over the past six years. To that end, Newmont is taking appropriate steps to address these issues with Barrick, with the goal of reversing this decline in performance and ensuring these assets generate the value they are capable of delivering. Newmont remains focused on generating and protecting long-term value through operational excellence and will act in the best interests of its shareholders.
